

The Flying Karamazov Brothers
in
50 Years of Juggling and Cheap Theatrics

On April 23, 1973 Paul Magid and Howard Jay Patterson went to a renaissance fair in Southern California and put out a hat as they performed their first recently minted juggling routine. A few passing fair goers dropped some quarters in the hat, $1.25 to be exact, and that is the day the Flying Karamazov Brothers were born.

Since that time the Brothers went on to play numerous times on Broadway and the West End of London, on the road in thousands of theatres in the US, Canada, and abroad. They have been featured actors on the silver, flat, and small screens including Seinfeld, The Late Show, The Tonight Show, and the hit movie, “The Jewel of the Nile”.

“50 years of Juggling and Cheap Theatrics” (50 YOJACT) is a celebration of this iconic group’s half century of fun, juggling, singing, dancing, music, and just plain virtuosic silliness and skill. This show will feature many of the Bros’ most famous routines. There are not many shows where you can’t stop laughing while simultaneously being awestruck by these world class comedic prestidigitators performing real magic. Perhaps the most amazing thing is that everything the audience sees is actually happening. 50 YOJACT is a unique experience that has a place in anyone’s heart no matter what their age.
